Tokyo – The hotel offers small rooms for single guests, without scrimping on the quality of its interiors and services.

Opening in April 2019, hotel zen tokyo comprises 78 capsule rooms set over seven floors. The rooms are tiered against five categories, varying in price and size, however all rooms include original art from graduates of the Tokyo University of the Arts.

While capsule hotels for single travellers have tended to be low-budget, hotel zen tokyo aims to elevate the guest experience through its dining options. Its basement bar and lounge, TAIAN, features a drinks menu curated by upscale sommelier Kota Narusawa, with a focus on pairing food with Japanese wine and sake. Guests also have access to a work lounge, private lockers and communal bathrooms.

While hotel zen tokyo's aesthetic plays to the tenets of Stripped-back Hospitality, it is also catering to an underserved market of discerning single consumers. For more, explore The Uncoupled, our newest Tribe featuring Jang, a single man who seeks out hotels for lone travellers.
